PEACE OF NATIONS

Clearer Recognition of Dignity of Labor Much Needed,

He Says.

LONDON, July 4.—The reading of the speech of Mr. Bryan proved a disappointment to the crowd, which wanted oratory unhampered by manuscript.

"The memory of the evening spent with ampered by manuscript.

"The memory of the evening spent with the American Society, Thanksgiving Day, two and a hair years ago is such a pleasant one that I esteem myself fortunate to be able to accept the invitation so kindly extended by our distinguished Ambassador, Hon. Whitelaw Reid, to be your guest on this occasion. Our English friends, under whose flag we meet to-night, recalling that this is the anniversary of our nations birth, would doubtless pardon us if our rejoicing contained something of self-congratulation, for it is at such times as this that we are won't to review those national achievements which have given to the United States its prominence among the nations. But I hope I shall not be thought lacking in patriotte spirit lifenstead of drawing a picture of the past, bright with heroic deeds and unparalled in progress, I summon you rather to a serious consideration of the responsibility resting upon those nations which aspire to premiership. This line of thought is suggested by a sense of propriety as well as by exent experiences—by a sense of propriety as each experiences because they have impressed me not less with our national duty than with the superiority of Western over Eastern civilization.

The White Man's Burden.

The White Man's Burden.

"Asking your attention to such a theme it is not unfitting to adopt a phrase cored by a poet to whom America as well as England can lay some claim, and take for my text "The White Man's Burden."

some claim, and take for my text
The White Man's Burden:

Take up the White Man's Burden—In patience to abide.

To veil the threat of terror
And check the show of pride.
By open speech and simple.
An hundred times made plain,
To seek another's profit.
And work another's gain.

"Thus sings Kipling and, with the exception of the third line (of the meaning of which I am not quite sure the stanza embodies the thought which is uppermost in my mind tonight. No one can travel among the dark-skinned races of the Orient without feeling that the white man occuples an especially favored position among the cliddren of men and the recognition of this fact is accompanied by the conviction that there is a fully inseparably connected with the advantages enjoyed. There is a white man's burden—a burden which the could, a burden which he could not shirk even if he would. That no one liveth unto himself or dieth unto himself has a national as, well as an individual application. Our destinies are so interwoven that each exerts an indience directly or indirectly upon all others.

"I take it for granted that our duty

Duty of Christians.

"Among the blessings which the Christan nations are at this time able-and in duty bound-to carry to the rest of the world. I may mention, neve: education, knowledge of the science of government, arbitration as a substitute for war, appreciation of the dignity of labor and a high conception, of life.

Education comes first, and in nother land been more clearly helpful than in the advocacy of universal education. "No one questions that Japan's influence has been a beneficent one since she has emerged from illiteracy and endowed her people with public schools open to all her boys and girls. The transition from a gostition of obscurity into a world power was scarcely more rapid than her transition from a menace into an ally. China is entering upon a similar experience, and I am confident that her era of reform will makes-her, not a yellow peril. but a powerful co-laborer in the international vineyard. In India, in the Philippines, in Egypt, and even in Turkey statistics show a gradual extension of education, and I trust I will be pardoned if I say that neither the armies, nor the navies, nor yet the commerce of our nations, invegicle for the people of Asia as have our school teachers, sent, many of them, by private rather than by public funds.

"The English language has become the vehicle for the conveyance of governmental, truth, even more than for the spread of general information, for beginning with Magna Charter and continuing through the present to most illustrious example known to history of a great population working out its destiny through laws of its own making and under officials of its own maki

People bestow authority.

Peace and Labor.

"The Christian nations must lead the movement for the promotion of peace, not only because they are calisted under the banner of the Prince of Peace, but also hecause they have attained such a degree of intelligence that they can no longer take pride in a purely physical victory. The belief that moral questions can be settled by the shedding of human blood is a relic of barbarism; to doubt the dynamic power of righteousness is infidelity to trust itself. That nation which is unwilling to trust its cause to the universal conscience or which shrinks from the presentation of its claims before a tribunal where reason holds sway betrays a lack of faith in the soundness of its position.

"Our country has reason to congratulate itself upon the success of President Roseswitt in hastening peace between Russia and Japan. Through this our nation won a moral victory more giorious than a victory in war. King Edward has also shown himself a promoter of arbitration, and a large number of members of Parlament are emerically and the success of the promoter of arbitration, and a large number of members of Parlament are emerical and the success of the promoter of arbitration, and a large number of members of Parlament are emerical and the success of the promoter of arbitration, and a large number of members of Parlament are emerical and the success of th

RICHMOND TRIP IN 1907

Kennedy Elected First Vice-President of League of Library Commissions.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NARRAGANSETT PIER R. I., July 4.—
Five hundred of the delegates of the American Library Association, which has been holding its twonty-eighth annual convention here, went to Providence on Tuesday to view the ilbraries of that city. The Southerners had many of them this that the series of the tity. The Southerners had many of them this that seperate with a clam-bake, which was served in royal style at Rocky Point, R. I. The party returned late that avening to the pier.

The Fourth of July was given to addresses from Governor George H. Utto, Qf Rhode Island; Rev. W. H. P. Faunce, D. D., Ll., D., president of Brown University, Providence, R. I. Owen Wister, author, and Brander Matthews.

The Southern delegates were unusually active, and have been appearing before the different committees of the council in the endeavor to obtain a pledge that the American Library Association will hold a meeting in the South every five years. Mr. Edward S. Evans, of the Virginia State Library, who is leading this movement, has been assured that it may very reasonably expect that the request will be pranted. The convention of 1907 will be held in Asheville, N. C., with a post conference trip to Richmond, Va. At a meeting of the League of Library commissions, held Wednesday evening, Mr. John P. Kennedy, librarian of the Virginia State Library, was elected first vice-president of that body. Mr. Kennedy was author of a resolution in the National Association of State Librarians to appoint a committee for the purpose of infusing new life into 1800 fate libraries which are now in a dorment condition.

a nation, if we possess the power of tearning aright the leasons to be taught us by Lincoln's life, will approach our problems of to-day. We haven't got the same problems nor as great problems as those with which the men of Lincoln's generation were brought face to face, and yet our problems are real and great, and upon the way in which we solve them will depend whether or not our children have cause to feel pride or shame as American citizens. If Lincoln and the men of his generation, the men who followed Grant in the field; who upheld the statesmanship of Lincoln himself in the council chamber—if these men had not done their full duty, not a man here would carry his head high as an American citizen. No. any work done by any man must largely have its influence, not only on the life of that man, but upon the lives of those coming after him; and just as this was true of the man of Lincoln's generation, so it will be true of those that follow us.

"We have heard a great deal during the past year or two of the frightful mount of the plenty of iniquity in business, in politics, in our social life. Now, there is plenty of iniquity in business, in politics, in our social life. Now, there is plenty of iniquity in business, in politics, in our social life. There is every warrant for growing hysterical about them. It is a poor trick to spend nine-tenths of, the time in saying that the remaining tenth in saying that we are the most remarkable nation that ever existed.

"It is true that there is much evil, but in speaking about it do not let us lose our heads, and, above all, let us avoid the wild vindictiveness preached by certain demagogues—a vindictiveness as far as the poles are asunder from the wise charily of Abraham Lincoln. Let us remember that many of the men who do the things of which we complain, even among those who do the worst, are American citizens, with much the same taste, tempers and characters as we have, but who have been exposed to special temperations.

But very many wrongdoers, especially when the wrongdoing is committed by a whole class, are wrongdoers only through force of circumstances. Try to remove the cause of their wrongdoing; remove as far as may be both the power and the temptation to do wrong; but do not cultivate toward them a spirit of rancorous hatred, which in the end will react most surely upon ourselves. War with the evils, but show no spirit of malignity toward the man who may be responsible for the evil. Put it out of his power to do wrong; if necessary, punish him where he has done wrong, but do not let this nation ever get into the frame of mind with him, which, under infinitely greater provocation, Abraham Lincoln strove to provent its falling into at the time of the Civil War.

task has been to carry the government forward along the course which I think it must follow consistently for a number of years to come—that is, in the direction of seeking, on behalf of the people as a whole, through the national government, which represents the people as a whole, to exercise a measure of supervision, control, and restraint over the individuals, and especially over the individuals, and especially over the corporations of great wealth, in so far as the business use of this wealth brings it within reach of the Federal government. We have accomplished a fair amount, and the reason that we have done so, in the first place, is because we have not tried to do too much, and, in the next place, because we have approached the task absolutely free from any spirit of rancer or hatred.

"When it becomes necessary to curb a great corporation, curb it. I will do my best to help you do it. But I will do it in no spirit of anger or hatred to the men who own of control that corporation; and, if any seek in their turn to fix ow wrong to the men of means, to do wrong to the men who own those corporations, I will turn around and fight for them, in defense of their rights, just as hard as I fight against them when I think they are doing gogue.

demagogue the man who measures iniquity by the purse. Measure iniquity by the heart, whether a man's, purse he full or empty, partly full or partly empty.

"If the man is a decent man, whether well off or not well off, stand by him; if he is not a decent man, stand against him, whether he be rich or poor. Stand against him in no spirit of vengeance, but only with the resolute purpose to make him act as decent citizens must act if this republic is to be."

Attempts to Influence Decision of People at Polls on Statehood Question.

Roosevelt himself, has ever before gone to such lengths to influence the decision of a public question at the polis, and such a thoroughly non-partisan question as this should be.

A member of Congress who is intimately acquainted with Mark Smith, the delegate from Arizona, said he believed the letter would work up Mr. Smith to such a pitch that he would induce the Arizonans to cast even a more decisive vote against the proposition of jointure with New Mexico, The question of admission of the two Territories as one State, under the terms of the bill passed at the recent session, will be voted on this fall.

S.S.S. HEALS OLD SORES

Every old sore exists because of a polluted condition of the blood. This wital fluid is infected with some germ or old taint, or perhaps has been left in an unhealthy condition from a long spell of sickness, or the trouble may be inherited. The poisonous germs and matter with which the blood is saturated force an outlet on the face, arms, legs or other part of the body and form a sore or ulcer. This being continually fed by a polluted blood supply, grows red and angry, festers and eats into the surrounding flesh until it becomes what is very aptly termed an "old sore." The relief produced by external treatment is only temporary. The only treatment that can do any real good is a blood purifier that goes to the very root of the trouble and removes the cause, and for this purpose nothing equals S. S. S. It drives out from the circulation all morbid matter and germs, even reaching down to hereditary taints, and by cleansing the blood heals old sores permanently, S. S. S. not only removes all taints and poisons from the blood but builds it up by supplying it with the rich, health-sustaining properties it needs to keep the system in health. S. S. S. makes pure blood and a sore must heal if the blood is pure and healthy. Book on Sores and Ulcers and medical advice free. The EWERT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA. medical advice free. COMMISSION MAY DEFY PRESIDENT

May Not Accede to Desire of President to Elect Harlan Chairman-Railroads Anxious to Depose Knapp.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 4.—It is lan to the chairmanship, and that Mr. Knapp will be chosen chairman again. He sald, furthernore, that the reilroads had been bringing to bear all the pressure possible to accomplish the deposition of Knapp, who has been very active in behalf of legislation to increase the powers of the commission. The croads even induced the President to express a wish that Mr. Harlam be chosen to the chairmanship of the commission. The man who was discussing the sub-Commission will come very near refusing to do as the President is trying to induce it to do in the matter of chocsing a chairman of the commission. President Roosevelt, as is well known, has been endeavoring to have the commission choose James S. Harlan to the chairman ship, to succeed Mr. Knapp. It was understood the commission would accede to the President's wishes and elect Harlan, who is a Chicago man and has just been appointed to the commission.

A man who is very close to the commission stated to-night that he is con-

Ilsted in the same work. It means much that the two great English speaking nations are thus arrayed on the side of peace. I venture to suggest that the world's peace would be greatly promoted by an agreement among the leading attent the world's peace would be greatly promoted by an agreement among the leading attent the world's peace would be greatly promoted by an agreement among the leading actions that no declaration of war stoud be made until the submission of the question in controversy to an impartial court for investigation, each nation reserving the right to accept reject the decision. The pre-limitary investigation would in almost every instance insure an amicable setting the stouch of the control of the dignity of tabor. The oddium while rests upon the work of the hand has exerted a baneful influence the world around. The theory that idleness is more respectable to consume what others have produced than to be a producer of wealthman not only robbed society of an enormous aum, but it has created an almost impassable gulf between the leaster classes and those who support that most of the perplexing problems of society grow out of the lack of society grow out of the lack of sympathy between man and man. Tolstoy is right in asserting that most of the perplexing problems of society grow out of the lack of sympathy between man and man. However, while others see before there is constant warring and much them nothing but a life of drudgery there is constant warring and much receive there work while others see before the classes.

Brotherhood of Man.

"And now we come to the most important need of the Orient-a conception of life which recognises individual responsibility to God, teaches the brotherhood of man and measures greatness by the service rendered. The first establishes a retional relation between the creature and his Creator the second lays the foundation for justice between man and his fellows, and the third furnishes an ambition large enough to fill each life with noble effort. No service which we can render to the less favored nations can compare in value to this service, for if we can but bring their people to accept such an ideal they will rivel the Occident in their contribution to civilization. If this ideal—which must be accepted as the true one, if our religion is true-had been more perfectly liturated in the lives of Christian and in the conduct of Christian naturations, and there would now be less of the White While in America and in Europe there is much to be corrected and there is much to be corrected and abundant room for improvement there has never been so much altruism in the world as there is to-day-nover so many who acknowledge the indissoluble tie that binds each to every other member of the race. I have felt more pride in my own countrymen than ever before as I have visited the circuit of schools, hospitals and churches which american money has built around the world. The example of the Christian nations, though but feebly reflecting the light of the Master, is gradually reforming society.

In tribunals like that of The Hague, the chosen than physical prowess, in tribunals like that of The Hague, the chosen representatives of the nations weigh questions of right and wrong and give a small nation an equal hearing with a great, and decree according to conscience. This marks an immeasurable advance. But is another step yet to be taken? Justice, after all, is cold and pulseless, a negative virtue. The world needs something warmer, more generous. Harmlessness is better than harmtulness, But positive helpfulness is vasily superiotic narmlessness, and we still have before us, larger ligher destiny of service. Even now there are signs of the approach of this hilfe cra, not so much in the actions of goys, ments as in the growing iendency, of men and women in many lands to contribute their means, in some cases their lives, to the intellectual moral awaltening of those who set in darkness.
